

Chest Pain

It is important not to increase the patient's stress level or ask them to make any effort. The team must not show any stress during the procedure that could worry the patient, and explanations must be reassuring. The patient's environment should be monitored to avoid causing stress.